Airlines extend time for deal

US Airways Group Inc. and American Airlines parent AMR Corp. have agreed to extend the termination date of their proposed $11 billion merger until Jan. 17, 2014, or later if the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia rules favorably on the merger. The Justice Department filed a lawsuit Aug. 13 to block the deal, arguing it would reduce competition and lead to higher airfares. The case is scheduled for trial Nov. 25 in Washington. The original merger termination date was Dec. 17. If the federal court rules against the merger, the airlines have the right to walk away within five days, the companies said in a filing Monday with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission - Linda Loyd

Wal-Mart hiring, promoting

Wal-Mart Stores is hiring 55,000 seasonal workers and is elevating 70,000 more to part- or full-time positions as the holiday season ramps up. The world's largest retailer said Monday that 35,000 temporary workers will become part-time and 35,000 part-time workers will gain full-time jobs. The shift means that Wal-Mart will be offering more of its workers benefits. That's significant because Wal-Mart has been a target of attacks by labor groups for what they say are skimpy wages and benefits. Last season, Wal-Mart hired 50,000 workers and said it would offer more hours in general to its existing employees. — Associated Press

The filing is for $100 million of stock, an amount used to calculate fees that may change. Marchionne, chief executive officer of both Fiat and Chrysler, wants to merge the carmakers to create a global player with the scale to compete with industry leaders Toyota Motor Corp., General Motors Co. and Volkswagen AG. The trust, a voluntary employee beneficiary association, is seeking a price for its Chrysler stake that is at least $1 billion more than Fiat wants Bloomberg News to pay.

The company, which also makes Tastykake and Nature's Own bread, snapped up five bread brands after Hostess went out of business late last year. Flowers said Wonder bread is being made at that company's existing plants. The 20 Hostess plants, including one in Philadelphia, the company acquired as part of the deal were - AP closed, Aldredge said.

DAILY MONEY TIP Adviser offers views on MLPs

With the Federal Reserve intent on keeping savings rates low, investors are looking for income among master limited partnerships, especially those focused in the energy field.

We caught up with one such investor, Kenneth Kaszak, a registered investment adviser in the Pittsburgh area who oversees $25 million for clients mostly invested in MLPs. He operates in the backyard of the Marcellus Shale, Pennsylvania's homegrown natural gas boom.

"Public pension funds are now getting into MLPs, which should give them an added boost, Kaszak said.

For instance, the Pennsylvania School Employees Retirement System (SERS) asset allocation in March committed an additional $500 million more for master limited partnership managers Atlantic Trust Private Wealth Management, Harvest Fund Advisors, and Salient Capital Advisors, according to

Pensions and Investments magazine

Individual investors "need yield, income appreciation, and liquidity, and MLPs provide that," Kaszak added. If they buy a portfolio of MLPs and hold them for a generation, investors' heirs acquire the MLPs with all of the deferred gains wiped out for tax purposes. "That's an amazing way to transfer wealth," Kaszak said. Here are some of the investments he has bought and sold recently: ► Tortoise Energy Infrastructure

Corp. (symbol: TYG) was "my starter fund," Kaszak said. "It's a closed-end fund that can sometimes trade at a premium" to its net-asset value. The Tortoise fund invests in other publicly traded master limited partnerships such as Magellan Midstream Partners (MMP) and Sunoco Logistics Partners (SXL).

▶ Without enough pipelines in America to move energy, Genesis Energy (GEL) makes its money transporting petroleum products. Since January 2012, Genesis has doubled in price and has raised its distributions for 32 consecutive quarters, Kaszak noted.

▶ Vanguard Natural Resources (VNR) is an independent natural gas and oil company that drills older properties, and its primary business objective is to generate cash distributions to investors. The shares currently yield close to 9 percent, but be aware for tax purposes that this is a limited liability company, not a limited partnership.
